STALWARTS CAN'T TRUST PEOPLE

Attorney Schweizer Tells Audience That is Secret of Opposition to Amendments

YOU CAN ALWAYS TRUST PEOPLE

Schweizer Says They're Right Nine Out of Ten Times when Left to Decide Big Questions

Blaine's independent gubernatorial campaign was carried in the towns of Burns and Bangor last night with meetings held in two places.

The crowds attending tse meetings in the town of Burns schoolhouse and the Good Templar hall in Rockland served to prove the assertions of Attorney James Thompson that the Blaine movement is spreading with the rapidity of a prairie fire.

At Bangor Messrs. Bosshard, Thompson and Schweizer of La Crosse were greeted by a crowd of representative citizens and after thirty minutes spent in the village were conveyed to the two places, Schweizer and Thompson going to Rockland and Bosshard, Kneen and others going to the town of Burns.

At the Burns meeting Democrat Committeeman George Hemstock and Republican Committeeman Richard Meinking were present. The latter presided.

"We're for Blaine because he represents the things we have been advocating for years," was the remark heard on all sides.

Sixty representative farmers, including the town chairmen of both republican and democratic parties, heard Senator Otto Bosshard and Assemblyman E. J. Kneen speak in behalf of the candidacy of John J. Blaine of Boscobel at the Town of Burns hall last night. It was agreed by all present that the meeting was the largest political gathering held in the town hall since it was built.

Meinking Presides

Both speakers dwelt upon the impossibility of progressives in either republican or democratic parties, finding voice for their convictions in either the republican or democratic regular nominees for governor.

"You have all come to the conclusion, long ago," said Senator Bosshard, "that it is no sin to scratch your party ticket. All or you have decided that regularity is all right for the politicians, but that for the average man it is all rot, if he can't vote for a man who represents his principles.

"We're advocating Blaine, not as democrats or republicans, but as independent progressives, like you are, like we all are in this county, with the exception of a clique of stalwarts in La Crosse, who are stalwarts for pocket book reasons.

"The stalwarts are telling you that the people's choice was shown at the primaries. They are saying that we progressives were beaten, and that we ought to keep still and take our medicine. That doctrine may be good for the politicians, but the average man and voter wants to do his duty as a citizen according to his convictions.

"If Mr. Kneen and myself can afford to say that we will not be bound by the fluke of a primary that gives us none but stalwart candidates to select from on the regular tickets, surely you independent voters, who have no axes to grind, can be free to obey your consciences."

Split Tickets Won Fight

Mr. Bosshard declared that the progressive success in Wisconsin was due to the fact that thousands of democrats had supported LaFollette, when he was governor, and enabled him to carry through reforms despite opposition in his own party.

"If any man is a stalwart," he said, "then let him vote for Philipp or Karel. But if he's an Aylward democrat or a La Follette republican, he cannot in good conscience vote for either."

"There are plenty of reasons for the stalwarts remaining regular. I'll excuse some of my friends in the stalwart faction. They are perfectly consistent. They can remember some of the easy dollars they got from Uncle Isaac Stephenson during his campaign for the senate.

Philipp Sat on "I & R."

Mr. Bosshard discussed at length his experiences in the resolutions committee of the republican platform convention at Madison following the primaries this fall. He declared that he had offered planks pledging the party to the initiative, referendum and recall, and that

What Bangor Men Think of Blaine

"I am for Blaine because he represents the principles for which I stand. I wouldn't be fair to myself if I did not give him my vote and my support."—Dr. L. A. Gilfillan, Bangor.

"Neither Karel nor Philipp is my choice for governor. Blaine is. Why shouldn't I support him?"—L. J. Roberts, president of the State bank at Bangor.

"I have always believed in and supported progressive measures. Should I repudiate them now by voting for Karel or Philipp."—Dr. Owen Evans, Bangor.

"I'm a progressive and intend to remain one. Therefore, Mr. John J. Blaine gets my vote."—Adolf Toepel, cashier, Farmers' State bank, Bangor.

"What do I think of Blaine? I don't know him, personally. I do know that he represents the things I stand for and he's going to get my vote and the votes of my friends."—Frank Roberts.

"I am for the independent ticket because neither of the old parties have a candidate in whom I place any confidence."—E. D. James, Rockland.

"I am for Blaine. Party lines don't count in a crisis, and this is a crisis for progressive Wisconsin.—Richard Meinking, Sr., republican chairman of the town of Burns, director of Farmers' State bank.

"Make it strong that I'm for Blaine."—Orrin Fletcher, republican, owner of one of the biggest farms in La Crosse county.

"If all the state is like our section of the county Mr. Karel and Mr. Philipp will have a bad katzenjammer on the 'morning after.'"—Elmer Feak, progressive democrat, many years treasurer of town of Burns, director of Farmers' State bank.

"That Burns meeting is a sample of how we feel about the governorship around here. It's all Blaine."—Fred G. Meyers, former republican town chairman of town of Burns, prominent stock raiser.

"Blaine will win in a walk."—George Hemstock, democratic chairman of the town of Burns.

"There's more interest in the Blaine campaign than any I can remember for years."—Frank Craig, prominent democrat.

"It's the interests that are divided this time—not the progressives. We had 111,000 votes in the primary campaign which will be centered on Blaine. The stalwarts, playing both ends against the middle, nominated both Philipp and Karel. Their 75,000 will be divided between the two, thus insuring the election of the independent."

This was the message carried to thirty voters of Rockland last night by Attorney James Thompson, La Crosse. The meeting held in Good Templar hall there was considered unusually good, compared to political gatherings in the past, and many of those attending voluntarily pledged themselves to support the man from Boscobel.

"The stalwarts, playing the game of big business, know no party," said Mr. Thompson. "Therefore they put up two candidates. 'Ikey' Karel on the democratic side and Philipp on the republican. As far as the people were concerned it was the old game of heads, the interests win; tails, the people lose.

"And yet they now have the amazing effrontery to demand that you remain 'regular.' That you support the men who allege the political faith in which you have been sincere for many years!"

Mr. Thompson declared that the issue in Wisconsin today involves the work that has been done in Wisconsin in the last fifteen years.

Minority Choice

"Mr. Philipp was the minority choice," he said, "and when word was received that he was nominated and that Karel had been nominated by the democrats there was chuckling in the office of every railroad attorney in the state. In La Crosse I could point to an office where the stalwarts gathered and chuckled, and remarked, 'Now we've got 'em. Now we're going back to the good old days.' Yes, they would go back to the good old days. The good old days when legislators rode on passes, bartering their votes at Madison for free rides to and from the capital. Back to the good old days when E. L. Philipp was wont to boast that he could take members of the senate to his room in the Park hotel in Madison, 'line 'em up against the wall' and tell them how to vote. Oh yes, they would go back to the good old days. They would go back because the interests are in politics for dividends. Dividends I say! Not for the good of the people of this great commonwealth, not for dividends for the average voter, but for dividends for the interests!

Prevents Bribery

"No wonder they are so bitter in the denunciation of Blaine for governor. No wonder that these men, who have always been on the side of big business are opposed to the man who started the investigation of 'Ike' Stephenson's campaign fund! No wonder they are opposed to the man whose investigation resulted in the passage of the corrupt practices act! No wonder they are against the man who helped to pass a law preventing the bribing of an electorate—the buying of a $7,500 seat in the United States senate for $113,000!"

REPORTED VILLA HAS SEIZED THE PEACE DELEGATES

Reported to Have Entered Aguas Calientes at Head of 15,000 Men and Imprisoned Conference

VILLA'S MAN ONLY ONE TO ESCAPE

General Antonio Villareal Who Was Villa's Choice for President Reported Not Captured

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 20.—A local Mexican paper, favorable to Carranza, announced today that it had received advices that Gen. Villa entered Aguas Calientes at the head of 15,000 troops and made prisoners of the delegates attending the peace convention. Gen. Antonio Villareal, mentioned as Villa's choice for provisional president, was said to have been the only delegate to escape. He went to Mexico City.

Carranza leaders asserted that they had received the same information in private telegrams. The report was not confirmed from Villa sources.

Earlier today messages from San Antonio declared that private advices received by prominent Mexicans said General Villa had moved 18,000 troops to within an hour's march of Aguas Calientes, prepared to capture the delegates to the peace conference in case of an unsatisfactory turn in the negotiations.

RUSSIA DECLARES GERMANS FAIL IN CROSSING VISTULA

Say Czar's Troops Are Going Ahead Slowly on Warsaw-Ivangorod Front

PETROGRAD, Oct. 20.—Official statements declare that the Germans are continuing their efforts to cross the Vistula river at several points despite very heavy losses. At no point, says the statement, have they succeeded. The Russians are declared to be advancing slowly on the Warsaw-Ivangorod front. According to a statement published in the Army Gazette some 18,000 German dead, left on the field by the retreating Germans, were buried by the Russians.

The war office states that the German right wing, which is extended into Galicia, has been making determined attacks in co-operation with the Austrians, but it is claimed that at no point has the enemy succeeded in gaining any distinct advantage. The Austrians have attempted to cross the San river only to be repulsed with heavy losses while fifteen Austrian officers and 1,000 soldiers have been taken prisoners.

FRICTION BETWEEN ITALY AND AUSTRIA STEADILY INCREASING

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Advices from Rome indicate that the friction between Italy and Austria is constantly increasing. The bitter feeling has been greatly added to by the declaration of Prince Von Hohenlohe, governor of Trieste, that he is convinced the fire in the Monfalcone dockyards more than a week ago, was the result of an Italian conspiracy. Frequent conferences are being held by the Italian cabinet. There is a growing belief that Italy will soon throw her forces into the field on the side of the allies. It is believed certain here that if Italy takes this action, Turkey will attack Russia.

URGE REGULATION OF STOCK MARKET

Should Be Reorganized Under U. S. or State Control Before Opening Says Perkins

SENATOR URGES VOLUNTARY ACTION

Poindexter Says Law Will Be Delayed and Exchange Should Submit of Own Will

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Before the stock exchange is reopened it should be reorganized and placed under the supervision of either the state or federal government, according to the belief expressed by Mr. George W. Perkins in a statemeut issued today.

"The stock exchange has ceased to be a private or even a national concern," said Perkins. "It is international, the great market of the world. The attacks made upon it in recent years have shaken public confidence. The only way to restore that confidence is to place the exchange under control. Now is the time to do it and steps toward that end should be taken immediately.

"As for any talk about the stock exchange not being a necessity because we have got along for a couple of months without it, that is sheer nonsense. The stock exchange is as much a necessity as the banks. We could live without either—but how would we live?"

Urges Voluntary Action

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A tremendous opportunity to inspire the public with confidence and take a step in the direction of restoring normal financial conditions, in the opinion of Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, would be for the New York Stock exchange to submit voluntarily to some form of governmental regulation before opening for trading.

"I believe that the New York Stock exchange should be regulated by the national government," said Senator Poindexter today, "but of course, it will be impossible for congress to enact any legislation in the immediate future looking toward the regulation of stock exchanges. Adjournment is upon us, and the next session is the short one, in which we will not have much more than enough time to put through the appropriation bills.

"I do not know whether it would be practicable for the state of New York to put into effect any scheme of governmental regulation before the time of reopening the exchange comes or not, but certainly some such regulation should be had. In the event that it is impossible to get through any legislation, either state or federal, the stock exchange members should show to the public their desire to protect everybody from the suspicion of double-dealing and offer voluntarily to permit such regulation without any law being passed compelling it."

GERMANS ANNOUNCE SINKING BRITISHER

This is the first report that has reached here of the loss of a British submarine. The E-3 went into commission in November, 1913. She carried a crew of sixteen men.

ENEMY HELD IN CHECK TO WEST AND ON MEUSE

Believed French Second Invasion of Alsace Lorraine Is Beginning to Take Shape

GERMANS DEFEATED IN ATTACK

Try to Carry Forts Along Meuse by Storm and Are Driven Back with Loss

BELGIANS HOLD THEIR LINE

Turn Back German Assaults Along the River Yser Despite Strong Opposition

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The general improvement of the situation on the left and right wings continues. In the north, although the Germans still hold their strongly entrenched lines about Lille, they are being held in check to the west and have been unable to move against Dunkirk. The general staff now considers Dunkirk safe, inasmuch as heavy reinforcements have been sent to the fortifications there and also to the support of the Belgians who are holding the line of the Yser river.

Attack Meuse Forts

Interest today, however, centered on the situation on the right. The Germans have renewed their attempts against the Meuse line of forts, only to be in turn badly defeated and driven back at a number of points. The admission that this has happened is considered here to indicate that the proposed invasion of Alsace-Lorraine with Metz as the objective, is gaining actual form. It is known that the German attempt to bring up their heavy guns to batter down the Verdun-Toul line of forts has utterly failed. They have also been forced to weaken their left to cope with the situation in northern France, and this has given the French a decided advantage.

Pau Takes Charge

While confirmation is lacking it is reported that General Pau has again been sent to the east to assume command and if this is so it is certain that the actual operations toward the Rhine are about to begin as the one-armed veteran has been promised that the task of clearing Alsace-Lorraine of the enemy will be entrusted to him.

Belgian Line Holds

The three o'clock official communique, telegraphed from Bordeaux, declared the Belgian forces, holding the line from the vicinity of Nieuport to Dixmude and along the front of the river Yser, are maintaining their positions in the face of German opposition.

The Germans still hold their strongly entrenched advanced positions in the vicinity of Lille but generally speaking there is little change reported from that section.

As a whole, the entire situation is described as "eminently satisfactory."

WRITES JONES LONG LETTER

Deeply Regrets Previous Engagements Prevent Him from Taking Part in Contest

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—Notwithstanding the fact that John J. Blaine of Boscobel, independent, non-partisan, progressive candidate for governor, is a LaFollette man and in spite of the fact that he was two years ago a Wilson man, which made him then from two angles anti-Roosevelt man, Colonel Roosevelt promptly responded to an invitation to support Mr. Blaine.

Taking advantage of Mr. Roosevelt's nearness to Wisconsin in his visit to Chicago yesterday, Richard Lloyd Jones sent him a telegram asking him if he would not generously lend himself to the support of Mr. Blaine, the only progressive candidate for governor in Wisconsin. In reply Mr. Jones received the following letter from the colonel in Chicago yesterday afternoon:

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 19, '14.
Dear Mr. Jones:

I have received the telegram from you asking me to come to Wisconsin to speak for Mr. Blaine, who is running for governor on a non-partisan ticket, put in the field so as to prevent what I should regard as the real calamity of having Wisconsin abandon the position it has held in the fore-front of the progressive movement. It is a matter of the most genuine regret to me that I cannot do as you desire. Literally every hour of my time is occupied from now until election and I should have to break many long-standing engagements, engagements which it is imperative to keep, in order to do as you request. Were it not that it is thus a physical impossibility for me to come, nothing could keep me away, for I REGARD THE CONTEST IN WISCONSIN THIS FALL AS ONE OF PECULIAR CONSEQUENCE TO THE ENTIRE NATION.

Three years ago I wrote in the Outlook an analysis, or, rather an outline sketch, of what Wisconsin had done, not only for itself, but for the nation, in pioneering the path of social and industrial reform and justice on this continent. Wisconsin has been the commonwealth in which we have seen tried out the experiments which must be tried in this nation in order that we may make the advance that it is imperatively necessary to make if we are to remain a genuine political democracy and to become a genuine industrial democracy.

A Rock of Democracy

One of the most striking features of the work in Wisconsin has been the way in which the University of Wisconsin has been used as an appanage of the state government in securing skilled and scientific administration in accordance with the true democratic theory. There is not in all the world a university that more closely approaches the democratic ideal of what a university should be and should mean in the life of the people, the life of the commonwealth.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A True Account Of the Babes In the Woods.

He Left Them to Play With the Hips and Haws and the Blackberries.

"OH, the 'Babes In the Woods.' I like that story. I'm glad you are going to tell it to us again, daddy," said Jack.

Well, daddy just has to repeat himself occasionally when he is expected to tell a story every day," said daddy laughingly.

"That is a heap, isn't it?" commented Evelyn as she cuddled close.

"These babes, Jean and John," continued daddy, "were orphans left by their father and mother to the care of an uncle.

"When the children's parents died they left these babes quite a lot of money.

"Now, the old uncle apparently was a very kind old man and loved his two charges dearly. He told the neighbors that in order to do his duty by them he thought they should each be sent to good schools.

"John was to be sent to an expensive boys' school and Jean to an equally good girls' school.

"But the crafty old chap had arranged beforehand with two terrible men to meet the coach that was to convey the two children to school and to kill the little girl and boy so that the naughty uncle could have their money.

"This program was carried out in every respect save that one of the wicked men was charmed by the beauty and playfulness of the kiddies and tried to persuade the other one not to kill them, and when the man said he would, since that was part of the bargain, he gave him such a beating that the naughty one was glad to run away.

"The wicked man with the kind heart disliked leaving the babes alone, but he didn't know what else to do, for he had no place to take them; so, telling them he was going to get them some hot buttered rolls and some nice cakes, he left them to play with the hips and the haws and the blackberries.

"Then began a dreary time for the two poor babes in the woods. They wandered about and cried and cried. Then when they were hungry they would pick berries and eat them, and so they got along for awhile.

"But at last the weather turned cool, and the babes suffered cruelly with the cold, and the berries disappeared, and they had nothing to eat, and then one night a terrible frost came, and in the morning John and Jean lay under a great oak frozen to death.

"Then such a twittering of the little sparrows when they saw the babes! They gathered about and held a meeting, and then each one began busily to collect leaves and drop them one by one over the poor babes until they were entirely hidden from view."

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

AFTER A YEAR

BY DONALD ALLEN

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Now and then a college student is called by his name as his mother gave it to him, but in the vast majority of cases it is by a nickname. Sometimes the appellation fits the individual, and sometimes it is far from it; but once bestowed it sticks.

Brian Jeffries had been in college a month before his chum settled on a nickname, and there was much rejoicing that it fitted him.

He was walking out one evening from his boarding house when he was set upon by three young men. They were supposed to be students, and to be mistaken in their man, and they made it warm for young Jeffries for a minute. Then he rallied, and when he had landed three separate punches on three individual chins the battle was over. Brian had delivered "the punch," as sporting men say, and from that time on he was "Punch" Jeffries. He was neither proud of it nor disgusted with it.

When the summer vacation came the young man went to his home on the sound. He might have gone camping or yachting or tramping, as so many students do, but he was way behind in his studies, and his father had inquired of him:

"Do you think I sent you to college to learn to row, swim, box and kick a football?"

"Hardly, father," was the reply.

"You stand very low in your studies, my boy; and you must catch up. Spend your vacation at home and do it."

It was a bit lonesome at The Oaks. Brian was an only child, and his mother was a semi-invalid and his father a quiet man who seldom entered into conversation. There were fishing and boating, and there was a trip to the village now and then in the auto, and the remainder of the time was put in reading law and wondering why men with sense enough to peel a potato could not enact a law that a half-baked judge could not interpret twice alike in the same year.

On his home-coming he had noticed two young ladies at Wave Crest—the next manor house below. One of them was Miss Pryor, whose father owned the property, and the other was a stranger to him. When he sought information of his mother she replied:

"It is a young lady from the city visiting Miss Pryor. I do not even know her name."

"Hang it, if I had ever been introduced to Miss Pryor here is a big chance for a flirtation."

"I'm sorry for you, but perhaps you'll survive the disappointment."

At about the same hour Miss Callie Floyd, the visitor from the city, was asking of Miss Annette Pryor:

"And who are the people at the other place?"

"Their name is Jeffries."

"Aren't there any girls?"

"No, only a son."

"College student?"

"I believe so, and home now on his vacation."

"He must be a bit lonely."

"Well, it won't be for us to cheer him up. I have heard that he was very wild and reckless at college."

"Why, he doesn't look it," said Miss Callie.

"Oh, you are a physiognomist, are you? You can tell by a young man's face fifty rods away whether he is wild or not!"

"I—I thought he had a pleasant face."

"Let me tell you what they call him in college. It is 'Punch' Jeffries!"

"But why? Does he drink more punch than anybody else?"

"It must be that. A young man who knows him told me that he had three brawls before he had been in college a month. I hope he will make no excuse to get acquainted with us. We must prepare ourselves to snub him at the first advance."

"Yes, we must!" sighed Miss Callie as she turned away.

Three days later Brian saw the young ladies start for the village in the runabout, and he got out his auto and followed. Why he did it he did not stop to ask himself. Perhaps it was because he had a hope that he might get a near view of the girl from the city. He was half a mile behind them, and keeping their pace, when he heard a toot behind him and glanced back to see a young man burning up the road.

That toot meant but one thing. It meant: "I am coming and you small potatoes with your cheap machines had better take to the woods!"

Even without the insulting tooting the oncomer would have found one ready to do him battle. Brian didn't like the shape of his headgear. He didn't like his goggles. He didn't like the pose of his chin. Therefore, when the young man came sweeping up and would have passed on—he didn't pass. He wanted to badly enough, but he couldn't just manage it.

With the two machines running neck and neck, the runabout was quickly overtaken and passed. Brian was on the inside, and he was crowded over until the wheels rubbed each other, and both young ladies screamed. They both recognized the college man.

"The loafer!" exclaimed Miss Pryor.

"But he was racing!" extenuated Miss Callie.

"And it was nothing to him whether he killed us or not!"

"Didn't he have to race when he was challenged?"

"No!"

"And shouldn't he want to win the race?"

"Callie Floyd, you were within an ace of death, and yet you are ready to excuse such recklessness!"

It was a week later, and Brian was in the village on an errand and had no thought of the young ladies, when an auto, coming from the railroad depot and containing a lady as a passenger, began to act in a very queer manner. It ran from side to side of the street, and the street, and the screams of the lady soon collected a crowd. It was Brian Jeffries who first made out what the trouble was and sprang forward. The machine had not got beyond control, but the chauffeur was too drunk to know what he was about.

The man was hauled from his seat and cast into the road, and Brian expressed his willingness to drive the lady to her home. It was then that he noticed the Pryor runabout and the two young ladies, and he thought they regarded him with something like horror.

"Isn't it brutally shameful!" exclaimed Miss Pryor as she looked down at the man on the ground, and in a voice meant to be overheard.

"But why did he do it?" queried Miss Callie.

"Because he is a ruffian!"

"You are mistaken, young lady," said a man beside their machine. "He did it because—"

But the runabout was put in motion. Miss Pryor didn't want to hear the rest. There was something about the incident in the village paper three days later, but she refused to read it.

Miss Callie returned to the city a week later, and although the young man was in no sense smitten he hoped and believed that she wasn't so down on him as Miss Pryor.

A year elapsed and Miss Callie came to spend the summer again, and Brian was spending another vacation with his law books. His father had said: "No use wasting your time. You will never make even a shyster lawyer. Why don't you go fishing. It's far more fun."

And the young man had said to himself: "I'll just read up the law on hog-stealing and pretend to myself that I have been admitted to the bar."

He saw Miss Callie, but she was twenty rods away and looking up an apple tree.

He saw Miss Pryor, and she wasn't but ten rods away and had a bludgeon in her hand.

Brian Jeffries's time was coming, however.

One morning when the whales gamboled, the mermaids sang and the waters of the sound were like a bogus half dollar, the young man went down to take a dip in the briny. Before taking the dip he cast his eyes abroad, and a mile from shore he saw a female rowing a boat around with one oar. He understood at once. She had lost the other oar and the tide was taking her toward Halifax at the rate of four miles an hour. He waved his towel, uttered shouts of encouragement, and sprang into a boat and rowed as if life were at stake.

As Brian drew nearer he saw that the girl was Miss Callie Floyd. Nearer yet, and he saw that she was not a bit perturbed. The other oar lay in the boat.

"Why, I—I thought—" he began, when she interrupted him with:

"Mr. Jeffries, why are you called 'Punch'?"

"Because I punched three fellows who set out to punch me."

"I see. Why did you try to smash your runabout last summer?"

"Why, it was merely a close shave, and I knew I could do it. The chap in the other auto was a ginx, and I didn't propose to let him crow over me."

"A very proper spirit, Mr. Jeffries, but why did you assault that poor chauffeur in the village?"

"He was drunk and endangering the life of the lady in the tonneau."

"Proper spirit again. How many brawls have you had?"

"Not one."

"Um, Um! Mr. Jeffries, you can row back and I will follow at my leisure. And a man of proper spirit ought to be able to think up a way to handle Miss Pryor."

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially "made over." One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one ounce package, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula here it is: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel.—Natalie in the Woman Militant.

A REMARKABLE EXPOSITION

The remarkable address of James Thompson, at Holmen, was not a mere political speech. It voiced the revivified spirit of the declaration of independence. It was the logic of liberty, not of politics. It found its inspiration in the personal integrity of American citizenship. Principle, not expedience, patriotism, not dogma, gave it impulse. It was a charter of liberty, the voice of free manhood.

Mr. Thompson's address will be repeated in many precincts in this section of Wisconsin during the next fortnight, and every voter should select a convenient occasion to join the audience. Its irresistible logic is for the ears of every patriotic citizen.

TOO MUCH MOUTH

Casting to the winds President Wilson's admonition to the country at large to preserve neutrality, Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, has recently been entertaining the lower house of congress with his views of the European situation, incidental to supporting his jingoistic resolution for an investigation of the United States' preparedness for war. Taking as his text "in times of peace prepare for war," Mr. Gardner deplores the fact that our army and navy are but feeble remnants of their former greatness. Also, apropos of nothing at all, he hurled into the record at length his opinion of the Germans. It wasn't a recommendation that would have got the Kaiser much of a job.

Considering that the United States has been exhausting every effort to keep strictly to the middle path, even going to the length of closing wireless stations for alleged violation of neutrality, Representative Gardner's tirade seems ill-advised.

THE COURAGE OF THEIR CONVICTIONS

It takes courage to defy precedent, even though the precedent be bad. Particularly is this true when the party office holder finds political precedent and conscience in conflict.

Admirable indeed is the stand taken by Senator Bosshard and Assemblyman Kneen, one a republican and the other a democratic office holder, in deliberately preferring patriotic independence to "party regularity." Admirable, but not surprising, for they are men of conviction and personal initiative who never have hesitated to make right rather than expedient their guide.

The true democracy has its foundation in men of their fearless integrity. Their stand for Blaine and truly representative government is the type of political service that buttresses free government.

PUT A COAT ON A MAN

Mr. Man, when you buy that overcoat this fall, what are you going to do with your last year's one? May we suggest that you turn it over to D. C. Dewey, head of the Rescue Mission?

The mission is approaching its busy season. It's going to have many unfortunate men to aid, most of them thinly clad. It helps a lot toward injecting backbone into a down-and-outer to put a warm coat around him. Maybe your last year's coat will be a big factor in helping some one to his feet.

Call up the mission this instant and tell Mr. Dewey that coat is ready for him.

THE ANSWER IS "BLAINE"

The meeting at Holmen Saturday, which opened the Blaine campaign in this county, was the most remarkable incident in the history of our politics.

The attendance was the largest ever seen in Holmen. Members of all parties participated in proportion. There was a degree of enthusiasm and a unanimity of opinion that has not characterized political meetings since the progressive victories marking the close of the "good old days."

The Holmen experience was repeated at Burns and Rockland last night.

These towns are much like other towns in Wisconsin. There is no reason to doubt that they gave a fair expression of public sentiment. Its message is plain, unhesitating. That message, in the political code, is:

"BLAINE!"

THEN HE GOT AWAY

"A big wood-pile with no nigger in it."

That's the way the chief counsel for the Rock Island railroad characterized the interstate commerce commission investigation of the financial joy-riding of the line.

He may be right. Perhaps the nigger has got away, but the sworn statement by a government accountant that two holding companies, with no other assets that $71,000,000 of Rock Island stock, had issued securities aggregating $350,000,000, looks as if there had been a dark gentleman about.

It is a dull year when some new sort of tax for automobiles is not invented.

France and Germany couldn't fight any longer battles if they were married.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Common Guy

The common guy takes up his gun
And starts for war upon the run.
He wades in mud, he wades in gore
To shoot men he ne'er saw before.
Not knowing what he's fighting for,
He only knows he's gone to war.
He charges ramparts day and night
And stabs and slays with all his might.
He meets some other common slob
Who's been forced to a fiendish job.
They meet and lunge and shoot and thrust,
Not knowing why save that they must;
Of him no royal poet sings.
The war game is the sport of kings.
The two who meet might well be friends,
Work side by side for common ends.
But still they slash and kill or maim
Each other, for it is the game.
We wonder if these common guys
In Europe ever will grow wise,
And chase the kings for all they're worth,
Until they've chased them off the earth.
The king is of historic note.
The common guy, he's just the goat.

The Moonscraper

Pat had gone back home to Ireland and was telling about New York.

"Have they such tall buildings in America as they say, Pat?" asked the parish priest.

"Tall buildings, ye ask, sur?" replied Pat. "Faith, sur, the last one I worked on we had to lay on our stomachs to let the moon pass."

His Choice

First Laborer (gazing into jeweler's window)—How would you like to have your pick among that lot, Bill?

Second Laborer—I'd sooner have my shovel.—St. James Gazette.

Happy Though Married

"Their home life is ideal."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; she goes abroad in the summer, and he goes to the Riviera all the winter. Perfect, isn't it?—Tit-Bits.

Downy Epistles

"They were married kneeling on a cushion stuffed with their love letters."

"I should think such a cushion would be full of angles."

"No; those letters were very soft."

The Rebuke Courteous

"I'm sorry to bother you," he explained. "I only want a 2-cent stamp and the smallest I've got is a $5 bill. Sorry."

The clerk shot a glance of mixed contempt and irritation through the window; slowly detached a stamp; tossed it across the shelf; then with eloquent deliberation passed out eight pennies, eight nickles, five dimes, three silver dollars, and a single dollar bill.

The purchaser gathered up the coppers, the nickles and the silver. The dollar bill he shoved back.

"Sorry to bother you so much," he said softly, "but may I ask you for another silver dollar?"

"What?"

"May I ask you for another silver dollar?"

"Sure,' said the potentate of the stamp window, with a sickly smile. He realized that worm outside had put one across.

The Cynic

"Paw, why did they give the officers the medals?"

"For bravery, son."

"What's bravery, paw?"

"Well, in most cases it's having the luck to command a lot of mighty good fighters."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Who's Boss?

A man went into a fashionable restaurant, accompanied by a couple of children, and after ordering a lemon soda, asked the waiter to bring him three plates.

This the waiter did, but when he saw the man take some sandwiches from his pocket, put them on the plates and pass them around to the kids he reported the matter to the boss.

"What are you doing?" indignantly cried the manager, rushing over to the sandwich party. "Don't you know that this isn't a free picnic ground, where you bring your own food?"

"Is that so?" was the calm rejoinder of the man, passing along another sandwich. "Who are you?"

"I am the manager," blustered the boss, with rising heat. "I—"

"Just the very person that I have been looking for," interjected the imperturbed party. "Why isn't the orchestra playing?"—Exchange.

Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. At break of dawn he crept into the boat-house like a shadow, barefooted, bareheaded— the club-house was not yet awake. He looked about the barnlike room for a hiding-place. Walls, floor, ceiling were bare. Near the door opening on the lake was a rustic bench, impossible as a refuge. Only in one corner, where empty boxes and a disused skiff formed a barricade, could he hope for concealment. He glided thither, and on the floor between the dusty wall of broad boards and the jumbled partition, he found a man stretched on his back.

At first, he thought he had surprised a sleeper, but as the figure did not move, he decided it must be a corpse. He would have fled but for his need of his corner. He bent down—the man was bound hand and foot. In the mouth, a gag was fastened. Neck and ankles were tied to spikes in the wall.

Willock swiftly surveyed the lake and the sloping hill leading down from the club-house. Nobody was near. As he stared at the landscape, the front door of the club-house opened. He darted back to the corner. "Pardner," he said, "I got to ask your hospitality for a spell, and if you move so as to attract attention, I got to fix you better. I didn't do this here, pardner, but you shore look like some of my handiwork in days past and gone. I'll share this corner with you for a while, and if you don't give me away to them that's coming, I promise to set you free. That's fair, I guess. 'A man ain't all bad,' says Brick, 'as unties the knots that other men has tied,' says he. Just lay still and comfortable, and we'll see what's coming."

Presently there were footsteps in the path, and to Willock's intense disappointment, Gledware and Annabel came in together. They were in the midst of a conversation and at the first few words, he found it related to Lahoma. The boatman who had promised to bring the skiff for them at seven—it developed that Gledware had no intention of doing the rowing—had not yet come. They sat down on the rustic bench, their voices distinctly audible in all parts of the smal building.

"Her closest living relative," Gledware said, "is a great-aunt, living in Boston. As soon as I found out who she was—I'd always supposed her living among Indians, and that it would be impossible to find her—but as soon as I learned the truth, without saying anything to her, I wrote to her great-aunt. I've never been in a position to take care of Lahoma—I felt that I ought to place her with her own family. I got an answer—about what you would expect. They'd give her a home—I told them what a respectable girl she is—fairly creditable apearance—intelligent enough . . . But they couldn't stand those people she lives with—criminals, you know, Annabel, highwaymen—murderers! Imagine Brick Willock in a Boston drawing-room . . . But you could not."

"No," Annabel agreed. "Poor Lahoma! And I know she'd never give him up."

"That's it — she's immovable. She'd insist on taking him along. But he belongs to another age—a different country. He couldn't understand. He thinks when you've anything against a man, the proper move is to kill 'im. He's just like an Indian—a wild beast. Wouldn't know what we mean if we talked about civilization. His religion is the knife. Well—you see; if he were out of the way, Lahoma would have her chance."

"But couldn't he be arrested?"

"That's my only hope. If he were hanged, or locked up for a certain number of years, Lahoma'd go East. But as long as he's at large, she'll wait for him to turn up. She'll stay right there in the cove till she dies of old age, if he's free to visit her at odd moments. It's her idea of fidelity, and it's true that he did take her in when she needed somebody. There's a move on foot now, to arrest him for an old crime — a murder. I witnessed the deed—I'll testify, if called on. Lahoma will hate me for that—but it'll be the greatest favor I could possibly do her. She knows I mean to appear against him, and she thinks me a brute. But if I can convict Willock, it'll place Lahoma in a family of wealth and refinement—"

He broke off with, "Wonder why that old deaf boatman doesn't come?" He walked impatiently to the head of the steps and stared out over the lake. "Somebody out there now," he exclaimed. "Oh, it's Edgerton, rowing about!"

He returned to the bench, but did not sit down. "Annabel," he said abruptly, "you promised me to name the day, this morning."

"Yes," she responded very faintly.

"And I am sure, dear," he added in a deep resonant voice, "that in time you will come to care for me as I care for you now—you, the only woman I have ever loved. I understand about Edgerton, but you see, you couldn't marry him—in fact, he couldn't marry anybody for years; he has nothing . . . And these earlier attachments that we think the biggest things in our lives—well, they just dwindle. Annabel, they dwindle as we get the true perspective. I know your happiness depends upon me, and it rejoices me to know it. I can give you all you want—all you can dream of—and I'm man-of-the-world enough to understand that happiness depends just on that—getting what you want."

Annabel started up abruptly. "I think I heard the boat scraping outside."

"Yes, he's here. Come, dear, and before the ride is ended you must name the day—"

"Don't!" she excaimed sharply. "He—"

"He's as deaf as a post, my dear," Gledware murmured gently. "That's why I selected him. I knew we'd want to talk—I knew you'd name the day."

Te helped her down the rattling boards.

Brick Willock rose softly and stole forward the opening, his eyes filled with a strange light. They no longer glared with the blood-lust of a wild beast, but showed gloomy and perplexed; the words spoken concerning himself had sunk deep.

The boatman sat with his back to Gledware and Annabel. He wore a long dingy coat of light gray and a huge battered straw hat, whose wide brim hid his hair and almost eclipsed his face. Willock, careful not to show himself, stared at the skiff as it shot out from the landing, his brow wrinkled in anxious thought. He felt strange and dizzy, and at first fancied it was because of the resolution that had taken possession of him—the resolution to return to Greer County and give himself up. This purpose, as unreasoning as his plan to kill Gledware, grew as fixed in his mind as half an hour before his other plan had been.

To go voluntarily to the sheriff, unresistingly to hold out his wrists for the handcuffs—that would indeed mark a new era in his life. "A wild Indian wouldn't do that," he mused, "nor a wild beast. I guess I understand, after all. And if that's the way to make Lahoma happy—"

Studebaker

September Sales Established the Supremacy of the Studebaker SIX.

We have already pointed out that September was the biggest month in the history of the Studebaker Corporation:

That September Studebaker sales were $4,277,797.92:

That from Atlanta to Minneapolis, from Los Angeles to New York, the length and breadth of the country, the sale of Studebaker cars for September, compared to September, 1913, showed a total average gain of 232 per cent.

This, we believe, demonstrates that the American people still have the confidence to invest, the judgment to invest, and the money to invest in a product that is staple, and a company that is standard and substantial.

It was impressive proof of the confidence of our fellow-Americans in the Studebaker Corporation, as well as in themselves.

Such sales, such national recognition, such prosperity, have proclaimed with particular emphasis—

The supreme position of the Studebaker "SIX".

It means that the Studebaker "SIX" is accepted as the product of Studebaker character, 62 years in the building.

And the American people themselves have helped build Studebaker character by endorsing and rewarding it.

The "SIX" is but a feature of the great line of Studebaker cars for 1915.

And yet, we believe, more Studebaker "SIXES" were sold in September than any other six-cylinder car in the entire motor car market.

The splendid Studebaker "SIX" with its maximum of roominess, elegance, distinction and sterling motor car worth, with the excellence of Studebaker manufacturing methods and Studebaker character built into it, at a price—$1385—possible to the Studebaker Corporation only, has been accepted once again by the American people as a standard and unquestionable motor car investment.

And back of the perfect Studebaker "SIX", too, is the asset and guarantee of "Studebaker Service"—the assurance that with every Studebaker car goes, not merely a motor, but motoring.

And the American Nation has already proclaimed the supreme value of that.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

They used to call it "soft soap" and now they call it "salve," but it is the same old stuff and brings results the same as it always did.

NORTH SIDE

VIADUCT A GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT

Difficulties Have Confronted Men in Charge of the Work and Yet Work on Edifice Goes Rapidly

Excepting the water works, the Rose street viaduct is probably the biggest piece of engineering ever brought to La Crosse. The approaches of the big bridge are assuming the appearance of monoliths of concrete, fashioned in pleasing design.

Several engineering difficulties have confronted the engineers in charge such as supplying gravel and crushed rock on the east side of the north approach. With the start of the building of the approach, a long piled roadway was built from the level of St. Andrew street over the walls allowing the heavy truck of the stone company to dump concrete-making materials near the steam mixer.

All work at the viaduct is highly systematized. A visit to the work is not only interesting but instructive. As the beginning of the incline of the approaches are some three or four hundred feet from the mixers, miniature tracks have been put down, gravity carrying dump cars to the forms.

Steel for the span is arriving continually so that the engineers may be able to begin work immediately on the bridge proper as soon as the approach walls are finished and the carpenter work on the piers completed.

NORTH SIDE BOY HURT BY AUTO

Norbert, the 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, 1012 Rose street, narrowly escaped death Sunday when he was hit and thrown to the pavement by the automobile thought to be that belonging to E. H. Kinney, North Salem road farmer. Both wheels of the machine passed over the boy's body. Examination by Dr. R. E. Flynn disclosed internal injuries of a serious nature.

The accident occurred in front of the St. James church, Caledonia and Windsor streets, as the boy was on his way home from attending services at the church. The boy started to cross the street when the auto struck him.

The driver of the car stopped and took the boy home with the assistance of spectators.

COMMUNION HELD BY PRESBYTERIANS

The quarterly communion preparatory service of the North Presbyterian church will be held at 7:45 tomorrow evening in the church auditorium. Communion services will be held at the Sunday morning service.

The annual harvest supper given by the Ladies' Aid society of the church will be held on Thursday evening from the hours of 5 until 8.

A free entertainment given by the Men's league will be held in the church parlors on the evening of Tuesday, October 27.

BURY UNKNOWN.

Unattended by sorrowing relatives and friends and without the usual elaborate rites of a funeral, the body of the unidentified man killed early Sunday morning by a Burlington passenger train this side of Genoa was buried yesterday afternoon at Genoa. The burial was in charge of the Vernon county authorities, in whose jurisdiction the accident happened.

Rev. Hudnutt of the Hardshell church has preached the same sermon three Sundays in succession and is thoroughly convinced that not one of the congregation has stayed awake to hear it yet.

SPOTLIGHTS

RUTH ST. DENIS

"After the orchestra had turned the thought of the audience toward the east, and the curtain had risen on the babbling Hindus, Ruth St. Denis appeared, and with the first wreathing of her hands set a strange, bizarre mood of the orient. She subtly typified the east in every motion and expression. Frequently in the evening the program was broken while others of her company showed the joy of youth, the depression of autumn, sheer mischief, or even indulged in our modern steps. Once Miss St. Denis threw the audience and herself out of this oriental atmosphere while she cakewalked in a laughable impersonation of a plantation negro. But always she restored this with the first stealing of her foot from behind the curtain.

"Miss St. Denis is rather an odd figure. Her face is small and her features are not prominent, but her expressions are remarkable. She is an actress. Her body is slender and supple and beautiful.

"She is exquisitely graceful. Every movement she makes is timed to a perfect rhythm. She always makes a balanced, skilfully composed picture. But the wonder about her is that subtle, almost mystic personality, that makes the things her body is saying so vivid. It gives one the feeling of looking at an old purple Japanese design or a bit of corroded Indian metal work."—The Des Moines Register and Leader.

JUDGES SHOULD AID THE LEGISLATURES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—That it is not only proper for judges to make recommendations to the legislature with regard to improvements in the laws regulating the organization of the courts and their procedure, but that it is their duty to do so; not by lobbying but by discussion, by publications and resolutions expressing their views, was the tenor of an address made here last night by Chief Justice J. B. Winslow of the Wisconsin supreme court. These views were expressed before a meeting of the judicial section of the American Bar association, composed of all judges of the appellate courts of the country, who are members of the association.

A town without a brass band is like a family without a phonograph. It is liable to worry along and have a pretty good time in life.

Migraine or Sick Headache

Dr. J. J. Caldwell says that this exceedingly distressing disease does not shorten life, but does not appear to be curable. Sufferers from this affliction are condemned to undergo the periodical attacks every few weeks until they are forty years of age, after which the attacks are less frequent, and finally disappear entirely. Palliative measures during the attack are all that it is possible to suggest, while care in the diet is the best preventive measure. An attack may often be prevented by taking two Anti-kamnia Tablets when the first symptoms appear, and one Anti-kamnia Tablet every two hours during the attack shortens it, eases the pain and brings rest and quiet.

Anti-kamnia Tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They quickly relieve all Pain.

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

(BY J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—11 A. M.—Estimating the casualties among the eight hostile nations on the proportionate basis of British losses, the total number killed, wounded and captured during the first ten weeks of the war is nearly 1,300,000.

The official report of British casualties from September 13 to October 8, which has just been issued, places the number at 13,541. Previous reports have given the British casualties from the beginning of the war to September 20 as approximately 18,000. The total British land losses, therefore, for the ten weeks of hostilities, aggregate about 32,000. The forces fighting on the continent are understood to total not more than 200,000 combatants.

The casualties represent 15 per cent of this number and by using 16 per cent as the basis for estimating the losses of all the hostil powers, the total losses are, by minimum reckoning, almost 1,300,000.

The following figures give, as nearly as possible, the number of men actually engaged on the firing line. This does not represent the total under arms, but only the actual offensive strength in use. There are perhaps fifty per cent more men now with the colors who are being employed for other work than actual fighting, or are being held back in reserve. The following figures are approximately, the number of combatants among whom casualties can be reckoned:

Germans, 2,500,000; Russians, 2,000,000; French, 1,500,000; Austrians, 1,000,000; Servians, 400,000; Belgians, 300,000; British, 200,000; Montenegrins, 50,000. Total, 7,950,000.

The total British losses are the only ones that have an official basis. The sixteen per cent of casualties among the British, therefore, may be said, as nearly as possible to represent an official estimate. If this proportion prevails among all the combatants, the following is the distribution of casualties:

Germans, 400,000; Russians, 320,000; French, 240,000; Austrians, 160,000; Servians, 64,000; Belgians, 48,000; British, 32,000; Montenegrins, 8,000. Totals, 1,272,000.

It is not possible to proportion the killed, wounded and captured, on any common basis, for each of the eight nations. The Austro-Germans have undoubtedly suffered more heavily in killed and wounded, while the allies have lost the greater number in prisoners. As far as the total official figures can be used as a basis for estimating, the average proportion of casualties among all the countries is one killed, three wounded, ten captured. On this basis the casualties are:

TOWN OF BURNS IS STRONG FOR BLAINE

Philipp, who sat in the committee, had opposed the planks.

"I know Mr. Philipp, and how he stands," said Mr. Bosshard. "I sat for 26 hours with him in the platform committee, and I found out how he looks at things. It's a straight dollars and cents proposition with him. He is against everything that costs the state money, regardless of its possibilities for future good to the people of the state or their children, unless it can show a profit.

"There is our forestry program. We have 400,000 acres of idle land in the northhern part of the state, that we have been reforesting, to make into timber land to conserve the water supply for our posterity, to preserve the game and to make an ideal camping place for the citizens of the state.

"But Mr. Philipp demanded in the platform convention that this program be abandoned. He said that it represented an outlay of money, that it cost the state thousands a year to keep it up, and that there was no return on the investment.

Materialism vs. Humanitarianism

"I don't like to indulge in personalities, but just let me say this: I know Mr. Philipp. He looks at all these issues just as all the other stalwarts look at them, from the viewpoint of money. And it is our progressive doctrine that we owe something to the weak and the poor, to the women and children, and to the future; that mere maintaining a balance on the right side of the ledger does not constitute the whole duty of a state. And so I say that a man of the caliber of Mr. John J. Blaine, who views these things in the progressive way, deserves your votes."

Mr. Bosshard devoted some time to a discussion of the eleven constitutional amendments to be voted upon at the coming election. He declared them to be the climax of the progressive work in Wisconsin. He said that they are intended to put into the hands of the people a club with which to force proper treatment from the hands of the big interests. He gave some interesting figures concerning insurance, in discussing the insurance amendment.

Gives Figures

"The state of Wisconsin for the year ending June 1, 1914, paid out $850,000 in insurance premiums. The loss was $110,000. There is $740,000 net profit. That is why the insurance agents of the state held a big jollification meeting at the Park hotel in Madison and shouted 'hallelujia!' when they thought they were sure Philipp or Karel would be the next governor."

Mr. Bosshard also explained the initiative, referendum and recall amendments, and the home rule amendment for cities.

Hon. E. J. Kneen, who opened the meeting, declared that there were just two reasons for his support of John J. Blaine. Those reasons, he said, were Ikey Karel and Emanuel Philipp. He declared the primary a fluke in which, by the multiplicity of progressive candidates, the normal progressive majority of the state had failed to nominate, while the stalwarts had united on one man in each party.

Lobbied Against Good Laws

Discussing Philipp and Karel, Mr. Kneen said that at every session of the legislature these two had been present as lobbyists, working against every good law proposed. He described at length the platform convention of the democratic party, and declared that every attempt upon the part of progressives to put through recommendations for progressive legislation had been steamrollered by the stalwart control, under the piloting of "Bob" Shields, of West Superior. As a light on the men in the stalwart ranks, Mr. Kneen uncovered Shields' unsavory connection with the Stephenson and Lorimer scandals in Wisconsin and Illinois, and told how Shields had left Wisconsin for two years when the legislature started its Stephenson investigation. He declared that it was largely through Shields' testimony of using the Hines Lumber company's money in behalf of Lorimer, that the latter had been deposed from his seat in the senate.

CITY PAYS PROFIT OF NEW VIADUCT

Milwaukee Railroad, Claims Official, Assesses La Crosse Extra for Labor and Material

That the Milwaukee railroad is installing the new Rose street viaduct at a profit to itself and that the city of La Crosse is the "goat" in the transaction, is the belief of city officials following the receipt, from the utility, of a bill for $32,000, alleged to be the city's share of the cost of the work completed September 7.

There are many items in the bill with which Mayor Ori Sorensen and William Torrance, members of the council committee on finance, take issue.

Among these is an extra charge, to the city of ten per cent on labor and fifteen per cent on materials.

According to Mayor Sorensen the railroad also includes in the bill a charge for bringing the railroad's pile driver from Tomah, to tear down the old structure, and then asks the city to pay for shipping the pile driver back to Madison.

There will be a protest when the bill goes to the council, said Alderman Torrance today.

KEIZER'S FATHER DIES LAST NIGHT

Attaining the age of 92 years, Nathaniel Pittinger, father-in-law of J. E. Keizer, died at 11:30 last night at the Keizer home, 1249 West avenue south. Old age was the cause. Mr. Pittinger was a member of the Masonic lodge at Onalaska.

Mr. Pittinger came to La Crosse county in 1865 with his parents. He was born in Richmond county, Ohio, November 28, 1822. He settled on a farm in Brice's prairie, where he resided until ten years ago, when he came to live with his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Keizer here.

One son, Abraham Pittinger, Centerville, Wis., survives, besides the daughter.

Funeral services will take place at 12:30 Thursday afternoon at the home. The body will then be escorted to the Brice's prairie church. Rev. J. E. Watson will conduct both services. Burial will take place at Brice's prairie.

CHARGES FILED AGAINST M'CALEB

That new charges have been filed with the local social-democratic organization against Robert C. McCaleb, candidate for lieutenant governor on that ticket, was the rumor in La Crosse today.

The charges, it is said, resulted from an attempt by McCaleb to form a new organization to be composed of what he terms "real socialists."

H. H. BERNDT FUNERAL

Funeral services for Herman H. Berndt, who died at his home, 1116 South Fourth street, Saturday, were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home. Burial was made at Oak Grove cemetery.

ROOSEVELT CALLS PROGRESSIVES TO BLAINE'S SUPPORT

of both the old parties are men who represent the most pronounced reactionary attitude toward what Wisconsin has accomplished in the past and toward what we have a right to expect from Wisconsin in the future. They represent hostility to the University of Wisconsin and to its use as it has been used in the past. They represent the abandonment of all that has been achieved in the state of Wisconsin which has so honorably distinguished Wisconsin above its fellows.

They Look to Wisconsin

It would be a veritable calamity for the nation if Wisconsin now took a backward step. There are many of us in the other states who, on questions such as the initiative, the referendum and the recall, on all questions of economic reform and of the democratization of business, turn naturally to Wisconsin for the teaching that must be administered by example as well as by word. If Wisconsin now not merely halts but moves backward, she will deprive us of leadership.

Sanity and Progress

In this very campaign, for instance, we are preaching in New York the desirability of introducing the initiative and referendum along the lines that Wisconsin has outlined, because our study teaches us that Wisconsin has in sane fashion shaped these reforms so as to secure the maximum of good with the minimum of friction and confusion. In other words, we feel that Wisconsin has stood in all its state action for the sane forward movement which it is imperative to see succeed in this country; for if it fails we shall then be reduced to the lamentable condition of suffering from convulsive alternations between extreme reaction and foolish and unintelligent radicalism. Wisconsin in its state action represents the cause of sane radicalism and advance. Mr. Blaine is the one candidate behind whom the believers in the forward movement can rally in the gubernatorial contest in Wisconsin this year. I care not what his political affiliations have been in the past or may be in the future. At this particular time, in the state of Wisconsin, he stands for those principles for which all men who believe as I do must also stand.

I greatly regret my inability to come into the state and speak for him; and I count it a privilege to write this letter for him.

Faithfully yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes a full pint—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft Wayne, Ind.

EASY WORK FOR SAFE BLOWER

Yeggman Entering Mindoro Postoffice Finds Instructions How to Open Strong Box

A burglar entering the general store and postoffice of Mindoro last night by way of a side window, found these words printed in red letters on a large card on the door of the postoffice safe:

"Don't blow me, just turn the knob and take what you want."

And the burglar did, but he only got a few cents in stamps, and a few cigars from the other part of the store.

Postmaster Olaf Skaar received word of the robbery this morning from Postmaster F. J. Ruland. In the message Postmaster Ruland said that his clerks had seen a suspicious man hanging around the corner on which the store was located. Police here were notified.

"INTERESTS SPLIT; NOT PROGRESSIVE"

ence to pay no attention to the statements already being made by the stalwarts, that "a vote for Blaine is a vote for Karel," and that "a vote for Blaine is a vote for Philipp."

"The stalwarts are scared to death," he said. "Even in La Crosse they are running around like chickens with their heads off, in a vain effort to stem the increasing tide of Blaine sentiment.

"I tell you that every railroad, every corporation, every tax dodging and people-robbing utility wants Philipp or Karel for governor. And to add insult to injury they want you to swallow him for 'regularity!'"

The announcement of the speaker that from now on he intended to scratch from his ticket the name of every man he knew to be unfit for office was greeted with applause by the listeners and promises of "Here too," "That's my stand" and similar remarks.

Philipp was scored by Thompson for his attitude at the Republican platform convention and the "mess" he made of the republican platform.

"Compare the platform of this campaign, dictated by Philipp, and those of two and four years ago," he advised. "The documents of the progressives read like a poem of hope, full of virility and breathing progressive government.

"Philipp converted it into an inscription on a tombstone. Just as cold, just as bad. It reads like a big man and a big party had died and that Philipp had sat down to write an epitaph."

Attorney Charles Schweizer, in opening declared that he wanted it distinctly understood that the Blaine men were not soliciting the votes of men who had always fought La Follette and progressive measures.

"We want men who accomplished and helped to accomplish things in Wisconsin," he said. "What La Follette accomplished was with the help of progressives of both parties.

"If you have any qualms of conscience about voting for an independent just ask a few of the stalwarts how many times they supported progressive republican nominees in the last twelve years. Ask George H. Gordon, who seems to be the leader in La Crosse, how many times he voted for Senator La Follette, either for governor or for senator. If he tells you the truth he'll tell you he never did.

"Before you cast a vote for Karel or Philipp just ask yourself whether or not you think the railroads should pay their just share of taxation. Ask yourself whether or not workingmen in shops and factories should be protected. Ask yourself whether or not women and children should have their hours limited to insure health. Ask yourself whether foods you buy should be adulterated, as in the 'good old days' or whether they should be served to you pure and wholesome and free from injurious preservatives. Blaine stands, and has stood for all these good laws.

"The stalwarts of both parties are opposing the initiative, the referendum and the recall. Why? Because they don't want to trust the people with the government. It has been my experience that whenever the people were left to decide a question their decision, nine out of ten, was right. Where do the three candidates stand when questions of right are before the people. You find Karel and Philipp with the few and Blaine with the many.

"I used to be a democrat but I never supported men of the Dave Rose type. I voted for LaFollette time and time again because I knew he was right, that he was honest and that he would never betray a trust placed in him by the people. When I became a progressive republican it was because I believed that the party was the one accomplishing things for the people. But I never was regular enough to support men of Karel's stripe or never will I become regular enough to support E. L. Philipp."

A partial list of those present includes E. A. Jones, J. J. Bunn, Elmer Hilton, Nels Olson, Frank Roberts, William Langhrhr, Fred Langhrhr, Warren Thomas, John Smith, Richard Shute, Rev. Griffith, Dodgeville; John R. Jones, Jr., E. D. James, L. F. Gehler and John Srickson.

DEMOCRATIC TALK NO. 1.

The Issue

The issue is so plain in this campaign that it can be stated in two words—HIGH TAXES.

There is no dispute about the fact of the taxes being high. There are some bold politicians in Wisconsin but we have yet to hear of one bold enough to decleare that the taxes are not high.

Now, it being undisputed that the taxes are high, the question follows: Who made them high? The answer is, THE REPUBLICANS. They cannot deny their responsibility, for they have been in full control of the state government ever since the Democrats vacated in January, 1895.

In their platform this year the Republicans commend their administration, thus placing the stamp of their approval on the high taxes.

The Democrats denounce the high taxes, just as they denounced them two years ago, and promise economy with efficiency if they are elected.

So the issue is very plain.

IF THE VOTERS W A N T A CONTINUANCE OF HIGH TAXES THEY WILL SUPPORT ONE OF THE TWO REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES, MR. BLAINE OR MR. PHILIPPS. IF THEY WANT THEIR TAXES LOWERED THEY WILL SUPPORT THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE, JUDGE JOHN C. KAREL.

Watch for Democratic Talk No. 2 tomorrow evening. C. L. Hood and A. H. Schubert will address a democratic meeting at Central Hall, corner of Clinton and Caledonia streets, Tuesday evening, October 20th.

Joseph Boschert, P. W. Mahoney and A. C. Wolfe will address a democratic meeting at Henry Schroeder's Place in the Town of Campbell, Wednesday, Oct. 21.

Don't forget the address of Hon. Paul O. Husting, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, at the La Crosse Theater Thursday evening, October 22.

PHILIPP COMING HERE SATURDAY

E. L. Philipp, republican gubernatorial nominee, will be in La Crosse Saturday, October 24, and will deliver an address at Linker hall, Fourth and Main streets. The local county committee is making elaborate plans for the entertainment of the candidate while in La Crosse. He will make numerous speeches in the county.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Peace offerings extended the Federal league by organized baseball at a secret meeting held last week in New York may be turned down by the new organization at its regular annual meeting to be held next Friday and Saturday in New York. This information was advanced by President Weeghman of the Chifeds on Monday.

"I do not know how long organized baseball will stand for his attitude, but with President Tener having taken away most of Ban's power since the Boston Braves became the world's champions, I am inclined to believe along with some of my best friends in organized baseball, and that is that Ban may be muzzled."

James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal league, was in his office in the Otis building Monday morning, but would make no comment on the meeting in New York.

"CHICAGO NEXT" CRY OF BADGERS

Juneau Starts Work with Chi Game in View; Keeler Displays Ability at Butler's Old Place

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20—Having reduced Purdue the Badgers now are planning their campaign for the Maroons, whom Wisconsin will meet here in two weeks in a game that will tell whether Wisconsin will continue to be a factor in the conference championship competition. Although the Badgers are due to play Ohio state university at Columbus next Saturday, they are treating that contest only incidentally and already are planning tactics with which to outmaneuver the Maroons at Madison.

But Chicago will face a far stronger and more experienced team than did Purdue. By the time that these teams clash Wisconsin will have the aid of Clayton, fullback, whose dislocated elbow has kept him out of the game for two weeks; Weimar, whose fingers were badly hurt in the Marquette game; Taylor, who has not been used on account of strained tendons, and Smith, another halfback, who has been suffering from a burst blood vessel in a leg.

The shifting of Captain Keeler from right guard to right tackle, where he fills the position held last season by "All-American" Butler, and transferring McMaster from tackle to guard, has done wonders towards strengthening the Badger line, which already consists of seven strong men.

The work of Frank Bellows of Chicago, quarterback, is surprising the rooters. His punts are far longer than they were last year, many of them going up to sixty yards. Most of his punts average fifty-five yards.

SCHIEBERL TO STAGE WINDUP

Local Fighter Will Put On Bout with Ritchie Mitchell for Welsh-White Go

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—"Peanuts" Schieberl, late of La Crosse and now in Milwaukee, will undoubtedly put on the semi-final at the Welsh-White bout at Milwaukee on November 9. The bout is to be staged at the Auditorium.

It is planned by Milwaukee promoters to match the local fighter with Ritchie Mitchell, considering the victory of Schieberl over Billy Defoe at Hudson recently. It was understood before the Hudson fight that the winner would be matched with Mitchell for the Welsh-White go.

The bout will be staged by the Queensbury A. C., which promoted the White-Ritchie affair last May, and the Wolgast-Ritchie match earlier in the season.

The boys will weigh in at 133 pounds at 5 o'clock.

These two boxers are the head of their class at present. Willie Ritchie seems to have fallen out of sight completely, and since his beatings at the hands of both White and Welsh, he is no longer the big man that he was in his class.

Welsh was a great favorite in Milwaukee about six years ago. His most noted bout was with Packey McFarland, in which the stockyard's beauty was given the decision, though many thought that the Englishman had won.

HORSES MEET TO DECIDE SUPREMACY

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 20.—The supremacy of the harness world will be settled on Wednesday when Directum I and William, the two world's greatest pacers will meet here.

These two pacers have met twice before with William winning the first race at Grand Rapids, Directum won the second race at Columbus where he broke the world's racing record. He defeated William in two straight heats in 1:58 and 2:00 flat.

SPARTA TO PLAY TOMAH INDIANS

SPARTA, Wis., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The game of the year will be played at Sparta on Saturday when the local high school team meets the Tomah Indians, considered bears in football circles in this section. The game takes the place of that scheduled with Oshkosh, which Oshkosh cancelled on account of their defeat Saturday by East Green Bay. High school authorities have announced that there will be no other game with Reedsburg. The southerners have admitted their defeat of Saturday.

Ecuador a Fertile Country.

Ecuador is rich in agricultural lands, but in very few cases are they worked to their full capacity; in fact, much of the most fertile land is not under cultivation at all. As is the case in other South American countries, the land is held in such large tracts that proper supervision and cultivation is not practicable.

THE better the news the faster it travels—"Right-Cut", the Real Tobacco Chew is taking hold like sixty.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"TUBBY" PLAYS GAME OF CAREER

Former Local High School Star Develops Into Crack Tackle to Fill Boots of Butler

For the second time in his university career, "Tubby" Keeler, captain of the Wisconsin varsity and former La Crosse high school star, was played away from his position at right guard and placed at right tackle in the boots of Butler, All-American man of two years ago, and second All-American last year.

And Keeler is making good, in fact his work was so good in the Purdue game on Saturday that it looks as though he will remain at the position. It was through Keeler's stellar work Saturday together with that of Buck, his running mate, that the Badgers scored their first touchdown. A blocked punt by Tubby sent the ball to Buck who raced twenty yards for the first Cardinal score.

Football scribes have gone so far as to say that the La Crosse boy played the best game of his career on Saturday, and a study of the game warrants the assertion. The big husky broke up play after play for the Boilermakers and his tackling was deadly. At the beginning of the second half with the score 7 to 0 favoring Purdue, the Wisconsin captain instilled the old Wisconsin spirit into his men with the result that the Cardinal emerged victors, in what has been characterized as the hardest fought game ever seen at Wisconsin in years.

Weimar, who has been out of the game for a couple of weeks, will probably get into the Ohio State game on Saturday for grooming for the Chicago game in two weeks. Stavrum is holding down his place at left end.

Dick Wells Anxious for Bout Here; May be Matched This Winter by Local Promoters; Is Ring Veteran

Wells recently fought Willie Schaefer of Chicago to a ten round draw at La Salle and is open to all comers. Schaefer is the lad who fought Pete Childs here the Fourth of July.

During his long ring career, Wells has fought a total of fifty-nine battles of which seventeen were knock outs.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; it makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease. Chas. A. Beyschlag, Druggist, 503 Main street.

UNDER CHARGES DIES SUDDENLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Despite the declaration of the attending physician that Frank E. Vogel, indicted in connection with the failure of the bank of Henry Siegel & Company, had died from heart failure, Coroner Hellenstein today planned an autopsy to hunt traces of poisoning. The coroner suspected suicide.

Vogel died yesterday afternoon in his apartment at the Hotel Biltmore. Vogel soon was to have gone on trial on charges of grand larceny growing out of the failure of several of the Siegel enterprises.

100,000 TO STARVE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—More than one hundred thousand men, women and children of Albania will die of starvation before Christmas unless succeored by the United States. declared Rev. W. W. Howard of New York, a missionary, before a meeting of Baptist ministers here today. The war is not to blame, he said.

In a Hurry.

"De road to de bad place may be paved wid good intentions," said Rastus Johnsing, "but ah ain't see nobody 'rested for breaking de speed laws goin' dere."

CULTIVATE LOVE.

Love must be cultivated and can be increased by judicious culture, as wild fruits may double their bearing under the hand of a gardener, and love can dwindle and die out by neglect, as choice flower seeds planted in poor soil dwindle and grow single.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The cable gave wheat strength at the start today and prices went ½c higher on the early trades. Persistent selling by Armour caused a reaction and when other pit leaders joined in the selling movement, prices broke sharply, going 1¼ to 1⅜c under last night's close.

Corn had support at the start on the report of warm, wet weather in Argentine, but influenced by the slump in wheat, prices declined until at noon they were ¼ to ⅝c under last night's close.

Oats sympathized with the other grains, starting with an advance of 1-4c and then dropping 1-2 to 3-8c.

Provisions held firm and went a little higher in the face of a large run of hogs and lower hog prices.

Wheat had a further slump of ½c in the afternoon and corn and oats declined an additional fraction for each month.

Provisions were a shade stronger in the afternoon.

A Thousand Arabian Nights in One IS Aladdin From Broadway

A street in Damascus; a dervish smiles into the eyes of a passing harem beauty; she smiles in return, her veil drops, and then— No stop watch has ever been invented that could time the movements of the dare-devil hero, on a wager, Jack Stanton, American, Aladdin from Broadway.

From the moment when the houri smiled upon him as he stood disguised as a dervish, the young American is caught up in an amazing adventure, and the reader travels with him at the rate of a monoplane while he rescues Mary Carruthers from a Turkish harem.

The Tribune will shortly begin serial publication of this new novel by Frederic S. Isham, author of Half a Chance, Under the Rose, etc.

Only Isham could have invented such a plot and only such a master could unravel it, leaving not a dervish and an houri, but a dashing young American who has saved a beautiful English girl.

Watch for the opening installment.

ENGINEER SHOULD BE PROPHET ALSO

Automobile Designers Must Anticipate Changing Tastes of the Times

To design a car which will always be ahead of the times, yet to avoid getting so far ahead as to lose touch with the market comprises part of an automobile engineer's duties, as recently defined by a sales executive.

Automobile styles change. And the engineer who provides his concern with a really advanced design which is acceptable to the public must be animated by a high degree of foresight, as well as drafting skill.

The change which has taken place in the last two years among cars priced around $2,000 and the active part taken in this change by Chief Engineer Heaslet of The Studebaker corporation comprise an excellent illustration.

Two years ago, four-cylinder cars, large and small, virtually monopolized the market at all prices below $2,500. Existing "Sixes" were large and unwieldy—costly to buy and to maintain.

Mr. Heaslet had, after several years of experiment, determined that six-cylinder flexibility and smoothness could be manufactured into a car of popular price. He incorporated his ideas into the Studebaker "Six"—a car which at once cut 1,000 pounds off "Six' weight, and $1,000 off "Six" price; a car whole sales of which equalled, in its first year, that of all other "Sixes" combined.

In its original form, this car rang the death knell of the heavy, high-priced "Four" which has since passed entirely from the scene. It also laid the foundation for an entirely new type of car, destined to play an important part in motoring history.

Of course, Studebaker has made the most of the early prestige, thus gained in the light "Six" field. The original model, much improved in electrical equipment, and equipped with a full floating axle, was sold in even greater numbers through the 1914 season. With even lighter weight, increased power, many refinements in detail and carrying an additional body style of five-passenger capacity, the present Heaslet-designed Studebaker "Six" constitutes still another step in advance. In price it remains lowest in its field, increased production and manufacturing economies combining to place it on the market at $1,385 for the five-passenger style, and $1,450 for the seven.

Some 1,200 street car men at Mexico City are on a strike and they have forced the cabmen to join with them

BRITISH RETREAT AND THEN DRIVE BACK THE ENEMY

Forced Back at First Along Belgian Coast They Have Regained Positions They Abandoned

WERE RE-INFORCED BY FRENCH

Strongly Entrenched Allies Are Now Awaiting Frontal Attack of the Germans

INDIAN TROOPS GET FIRST WORK

Natives Said to Have Covered Themselves with Glory in Opening Fight of Campaign

BY ED L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 20.—That the British forces have again straightened out the line of battle in France by hard fighting was admitted Monday. That, it is stated, is the real meaning of last night's announcement that the Germans had been driven back thirty miles. The British, by a series of heavy engagements in which the fighting was continuous, have prevented Gen. Von Boehn's army from attacking Dunkirk from the south.

The Germans, following the arrival of fresh reserves a week ago, pushed their lines steadily westward from Lille to St. Omer. Because of the weight of numbers, it was necessary for the British to fall back. When St. Omer was reached, however, they were reinforced by two French armies and another driving movement was begun which only ended after Armentieres, thirty miles to the earstward, had been occupied in force.

The allies are now back to their original line, extending almost due north and south from the vicinity of Ostend, south through Armentieres to Arras. This will compel the Germans who are operating from Ostend and moving against Dunkirk to make all of their movements direct frontal assaults against a very strong Belgian-French force, well entrenched.

There is much satisfaction expressed in military circles today over the success that has been attained by the British forces in this movement. While no official information is obtainable it is reported here that the Indian forces saw their first service in this maneuver and that they covered themselves with glory.

HUMAN SYSTEM INJURED BY ONE CUP OF COFFEE

Its Constant Use Tends to Increase Fatigue Products Says Kansas City Physician

The constant use of coffee and tea tends to increase fatigue products in the human system, says Dr. G. Wilse Robinson, of the University Medical College, Kansas City, Mo.

"Caffeine is used in coffee and tea as a beverage for its stimulating effects. Even in small doses, one cup of coffee or tea per day, the general results of the action of caffeine upon the nervous system are to increase the irritability of the brain.

"In order to respond to the stimulation of regular doses of caffeine, nerve and muscle tissue must draw upon their reserve energy, and they must do their work in the presence of an excessive quantity of toxic fatigue products, and both of these conditions tend to exhaustion and perversion of function.

"Caffeine is not a food to nerve or muscle tissue. It does not increase the elimination of fatigue products, but does increase their production."

NOTE—Too much cannot be said in favor of the value of an invigorating morning drink, especially during colder weather—but the drink must not be harmful. The food-drink, INSTANT POSTUM, while resembling the better grades of Java in flavor and appearance is pure, wholesome and wholly free from the coffee drugs 'caffeine' and 'tannin' and is rapidly taking the place of coffee as a table beverage for reasons of health.

WILL MAKE FIGHT OVER DICTOGRAPH

William J. Burns and His Methods to Be Point of Attack for Carman Defense

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 20.—Sarcastically scoring William J. Burns and belittling "dictograph evidence," Chief Counsel Graham yesterday outlined at the trial of Mrs. Florence Carman the plans for her defense. Any attempt to show that she over heard something over the dictograph which excited her jealousy to the point that caused her to kill Mrs. Louise Bailey will be bitterly fought, Attorney Graham plainly indicated.

Six men had been accepted as jurors when the noon adjournment of court was called. These were accepted out of nineteen talesmen examined.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF FALLING OUT OR DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weews' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

"Japan doesn't want the Philippines and would not take them as a gift," said President Judson. 'The islands would merely be a burden on the country. All this talk of the Japanese coveting the islands is pure moonshine."

PROVISIONS FOR THE ARMY IN THE FIELD

Importance of keeping body well nourished

In time of war, the greatest effort is always made toward cutting off the enemy's base of supplies. It is the well-nourished people who fight the strongest and live the longest and contribute most to human progress. Is your stomach doing its duty—does it concert food into good blood and tissue?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of Indigestion, that thousands of former sufferers owe their good health of today to its wonderful power, and testimonials prove it.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

It is the world's proved blood purifier. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. Start to take it today and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, and in a few days you will know by your steadier nerves, firmer step, keener mind, brighter eyes and clearer skin that the bad blood is passing out, and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arteries.

The same good blood will cause pimples, acne, eczema and all skin eruptions to dry up and disappear. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the helpful remedy that nearly everyone needs. It contains no alcohol or narcotics of any kind.
